Damon Jones
Vice President,
Global Communications &
Advocacy

Damon Jones leads efforts to ensure the world's largest consumer goods company is recognized as one of the most trusted brands in the world. Leveraging P&G's significant industry presence, advertising spending and convening power, Jones directs a broad portfolio of advocacy activities focused on driving equality for women, people of color and other under-represented groups.

He also leads a team responsible for global corporate communications, digital and social media, stakeholder engagement, issues advocacy and crisis management. A trusted advisor to the C-suite, he has a proven track record of leveraging reputation and relationships to drive brand and business success, while guiding and enabling the Company to be a force for good and a force for growth.

During his more than 20 year career with P&G, Jones has had responsibility for a diverse set of geographic, organizational and product portfolios – with assignments in Boston, Geneva, London and Singapore – leading local, regional and global businesses.

Following his passion for community engagement, Jones took a leave of absence to serve as the Communications Director for the 2008 Democratic National Convention. He led the development and successful execution of the communications strategy engaging more than 15,000 media for the most watched US political Convention on record at the time.
